

Stones in His Pockets

Written by Marie Jones

Directed by William Roudebush*

Sept. 2 - Oct. 5, 2008

Winner of London's Olivier Award for Best Comedy, Marie Jones's hyperkinetic Broadway hit satirically chronicles the making of a big-budget Hollywood movie in a provincial Irish village. In sidesplitting and chameleon-like fashion, two exceptionally gifted performers play an entire cast of eccentric characters— from the film's spoiled American starlet to the star-struck locals. Note that explicit language is used in this show. EXTENDED BY POPULAR DEMAND until Oct. 5th...SIX PERFORMANCES ADDED, with Chris Faith taking over the role of Charlie Conlon, replacing Declan Mooney!

Performance time: 1 hour, 45 minutes with one intermission.

Starring Tony Braithwaite* and Chris Faith*

Ticket prices: $20 for previews, $25 for weekdays, $30 for weekends (Friday-Sunday)

"Braithwaite and Mooney cannot be complimented enough for their performances - they not only change characters at breakneck speed, but they also successfully shift moods and sometimes even seem to change appearance from part to part. Their mastery of all the varied accents also cannot go unnoticed, as they shift quickly among Irish, Cockney and American dialects." ~Carrie Compton, Montgomery Newspapers
